

“Adult people schools and participation of civil society”

¿How could we promote participation in decision and management spaces of our school or entity? ¿How could we promote active citizenship in our neighbourhoods, towns or cities?

1.- It is really important that participant’s voices could be represented in the different school’s management spaces, and also in the international meetings and projects. They must be present in all the spaces and in all the decisions.

2.- Timetables must be really flexible (mornings, afternoons and evenings) and must include also weekends, thus making possible that more people could participate in all the activities that are organised.

3.- To create open work commissions making possible that all people that wish it, could participate and could develop their own initiatives.

4.- To create assemblies and democratic opened spaces in order to evaluate and decide about all the activities organised and developed. These commissions should meet at least once in a month.

5.- To organise elections within that management organisms once in two years. These elections might be really opened, making possible that all people could be presented, could be elected, and could vote.

6.- To be co-ordinated with other entities that are working in the same neighbourhood, town or entity, promoting active citizenship.

7.- To disseminate all the activities organised and to be also informed about activities organised and developed by other entities.

8.- To organise “open doors” days, making possible that all people from our neighbourhood, town or city, could visit our the organisation and all the activities of the different centres.

9.- To create questioners to evaluate all the activities and to promote at the same time, opened spaces to debate all these points.

10.- To learn New technologies in order to have also the chance to participate in the actual information society.
